The Black Crook.

One of the features of the Miller & Plohn production of "The Black Crook" is the transformation scene, which comes at the finish of the last act, and which has been given the title of "From the Tropics to the Land of the Midnight Sun." The idea was suggested to the management by the expedition of Peary to the North Pole, and it is said to realistically depict the constant changes of scene that greet the eye of the Arctic explorer. It is most elaborately conceived and executed, requiring nearly a whole carload of scenery for this one effect alone.

It is promised, however, that this feature is but in keeping with the rest of the production, it being complete in every particular.

HARK DUNHAM'S THRILLING NIGHT

Interesting Story of an Experience
Had in Bandon Many Years Ago.

(Bandon Record.)

Our old friend, Hark W. Dunham, was a visitor to Bandon Saturday. Everybody knows Hark, the grizzled brunette who for so many years handled the throttle on the rivers steamers and who bears the distinction of being the only man who can smoke a corncob pipe and whistle "Turkey in the Straw" simultaneously. Hark is now the guardian angel of peace during the nocturnal hours at the county seat, and every roaming bovine and barking canine in town have discovered the fact to their sorrow.

Away back in his younger and better looking days Hark had an experience in Bandon that he will not forget. He actually turned deathly pale when he related the circumstance Saturday and as it has never been published we are going to give our readers the benefit of it now. It is best told in Hark's own language. Here it is:

"Dear me (or something similar), I never look at you corner room of the hotel but I think of a hair-raising experience I had there 25 years ago. Well, —, I'll tell you fellows the whole — story. I had that room rented, for I stayed here nights then.

"Well, —, one night I got in pretty — late with the boat, and when I went to the hotel the clerk told me there was a man in my room to share the bed with me. I didn't care a — bit about that, so I just mounted the stairs to turn in. There was no lamp in the room and I didn't have a match, so I just peeped off in the dark and rolled under the covers. The other feller was in the middle of the bed as still as a mouse, and I ordered him to shift a little and make room, as a part of my carcass had to hang over the lee side of the bunk.

"Hey, partner, do you want the whole — bed? I asked.

"He never answered so I spoke a little louder next time, giving him a — good jolt in the ribs to boot. Still he was as mum as an oyster. Then I just reached over to move him with my hands, and Lord bless me if I didn't touch a face that was as cold as a Klondike icicle. He was dead — dead as a mackerel, by gosh.

"Well, I just had to lay there with that corpse for fully five minutes plum paralyzed with terror before I could bump the ceiling and let a whoop out of me that raised the whole — house. The clerk came rushing in with a lantern, followed by other lodgers, and I went rushing out three steps at a jump for the street. I just lingered long enough to get a squint at his wide open glassy eyes, and didn't stop for clothes nor nothing.

"No sir, by gosh, you couldn't hire me for fun, money or marbles to go into the room again," concluded Hark as he lighted the furnace of his corncob and whistled "Turkey in the Straw" with about the expression of one who whistles in a graveyard at the midnight hour.

DIED.

HUCKESTEIN.—At the family home at 1173 North Court street, at 5:30 p. m., on Monday, March 9, 1908, an infant child.

The funeral was held yesterday at 10 o'clock.

PENTON.—At her home, corner Fourteenth and Leslie, at 7:30 p. m., Tuesday, March 10, 1908, Mrs. Emma Penton, aged 79 years of paralysis.

Deceased is survived by her two sons, J. H. and R. L. Penton, both of this city, and her grandchildren. She came to Oregon from Illinois.

The funeral will be held from the home on Thursday at 2 p. m., Elder Davis Errett officiating.

If Albany talks paving as long as Salem did before doing anything, it will be ten years before they get anything.

A PROGRAM FOR THAW WOMAN

(United Press Leased Wire.)
New York, March 11.—The long-rumored suit for the annulment of the marriage of Harry K. Thaw and his wife, formerly Evelyn Nesbitt, was brought today, the papers in the action being drawn by Daniel O'Reilly, formerly of Thaw's legal staff, and now attorney for Evelyn. The grounds on which the annulment is asked are that Thaw was insane at the time of his marriage.

Mr. O'Reilly, while tacitly admitting that a settlement had been agreed upon by his client and the Thaw family, denied the story of a $50,000 settlement and a $15,000 annuity.

It is rumored today that Evelyn Thaw is to return to the stage. It is said that a play has been written for her, the "big scene" of which will show the interior of a court room, with her on the witness stand.

AND STOCKS ARE AGAIN SOARING

(United Press Leased Wire.)
New York, March 11.—The calamity chorus was busy again today. Before they could even get a fair start, they were put to flight by heavy supporting orders. As the session progressed, the upward movement became even more pronounced, until by noon the bears were scurrying to cover.

Union Pacific made a brilliant dash of five points, closely followed by St. Paul, Reading and Missouri Pacific with three points; Pennsylvania and Southern Pacific with 2½ points.

The large short interests were driven in Northern Pacific, which advanced three points. The higher it went the greater became the unsteadiness of the shorts.

The close was strong.

BANKERS
ANSWER
29 COUNTS

New York, March 11.—Charles W. Morse and Alfred H. Curtis, of the National Bank of North America, appeared as prisoners in the federal court today to answer to indictments on 29 counts, charging them with conspiracy to defraud and violating the federal banking laws. Upon their arraignment both pleaded not guilty, and were released on bond.

WOMAN
WANTED TO WORK

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Spokane, Wash., March 11.—cause she had determined to make her own living and had decided to better opportunities were presented to a man than a woman, Mrs. E. Carson, aged 20 years, of Tekon, started to walk to Tekon, where she expected to work as a section hand, and was arrested yesterday by Marshal Nesbitt, on the charge of masquerading in man's apparel. She was brought to Coifax and lodged in county jail.

BUILDING
MARINE TORPEDO

Washington, March 11.—P. Hibbs, of Seattle, one of the constructors of the battleship Nebraska, accompanied by Representative Humphrey, called on Secretary of the Navy Metcalf to urge that the submarine torpedo boats provided in the pending naval appropriation bill be constructed on the cific coast. They explained to secretary that the cost of the construction of these vessels on the lantic coast, added to the cost their transportation to the West where they will be commissioned service, would greatly exceed cost of construction on the Pacific coast. Mr. Metcalf agreed with presentation made by Mr. Hibbs, said that he would endeavor to at least four of the eight vessels built in Western yards.

ITALIAN MACHINE BUST

Cheyenne, Wyo., March 11.—Italian automobile entered in New York-to-Paris race is stuck mud hole near Paxton, Neb., with broken shaft, and may be so disabled as to make it necessary drop out of the contest.

The American car, after a stiff tie with snow drifts and a east wind, reached Walcott last night and the crew expect to take dinner Rawlins today. The car is in excellent shape.

The Italian car has been making very good speed during the last hours, having gained 175 miles the American machine.
